Welcome

Well what a glorious week it has been let us hope Summer is here to stay this time. It's lovely to see the children playing outside enjoying the sunshine but could I just remind you all about sun hats and suncream.

Rehearsals for Red Kite Class' end of term production 'Jill and Fred's Most Hysterical Historical Adventure' are well underway. We have today invited parents of the children in Red Kite Class to book their tickets for this event and as soon as we know how many surplus tickets we have available we will offer these to parents in other classes. All of the children in school will get to see the production on Wednesday for the Dress rehearsal

Woodpeckers

In Outdoor Learning this week, Woodpecker Class made paint out of crushed charcoal and oil in order to create pictures like cavemen!

Robins

This week Robins have started learning their new Talk for Writing text "The Very Hungry Caterpillar" By Eric Carle. We have practised the days of the week so that we are confident to say what day it will be tomorrow, yesterday, today and in two days time. We have also been looking at the life cycle of a caterpillar by recalling the butterflies we had in class before half term and exploring how they cleverly make their cocoon to begin their transformation from hungry caterpillar to beautiful butterfly.

Red Kites

This week we have been looking at persuasion texts and created our own persuasive flyer or leaflet to promote our up and coming performance of 'Jill and Fred's most Hysterical Historical Adventure'.

Tickets available soon.

Starlings

This week in English Starlings have been writing poetry. They read a poem called the 'Sound Collector' by Roger McGough, then they wrote their own version substituting the words in the original with words to describe the sounds around the school.
